

Code of Conduct

INTRODUCTION

Destiny Media Technology's ("DESTINY") reputation depends on the conduct of its employees, officers and directors who have an obligation to DESTINY and its shareholders to act in a responsible, moral and ethical manner when representing DESTINY and conducting DESTINY business. This Code of Conduct covers a wide range of business practices and procedures and applies to DESTINY and its subsidiaries and contains guidelines that supplement all other DESTINY policies and procedures as exist from time to time.

This Code of Conduct does not cover every issue that may arise, but it sets out important principles that should guide all DESTINY employees. The Code of Conduct should also be provided to and followed by DESTINY's agents and representatives, including subcontractors, consultants and independent contractors and others conducting business on behalf of DESTINY.

The purpose of the Code of Conduct is to promote:

- Honest and ethical conduct, including properly addressing actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships;
- Compliance with applicable governmental laws and regulations;
- Full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable disclosure in DESTINY's annual and quarterly reports and in other public communications made by DESTINY; and
- Prompt internal reporting to an appropriate person or persons of violations of this Code of Conduct and underlying DESTINY policies and procedures and standards that are incorporated into this Code of Conduct.

COMPLIANCE with LAWS, RULES and REGULATIONS

DESTINY requires that all employees, officers and directors obey the laws, rules and regulations applicable to DESTINY in the cities, states and countries where DESTINY does business. You are expected to use good judgment and common sense in seeking to comply with all applicable laws, rules and regulations and to ask for advice when you are uncertain about them.

CONFLICT of INTEREST

DESTINY employees, officers and directors have an obligation to conduct business in a manner that prevents actual or potential conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships. DESTINY recognizes that investors are harmed when the real or apparent private interests of a director, officer or employee is in conflict with DESTINY's interests. An actual or potential conflict of interest occurs when an employee, officer or director is in a position to influence a decision that may result in a personal gain (kickback, bribe, substantial gift or special consideration) for the employee, a relative or close associate, or when someone receives improper personal benefits as a result of his or her position with DESTINY. A conflict situation can arise when an employee, officer or director takes actions or has interests that may make it difficult to perform his or her duties objectively and effectively. If a DESTINY employee works simultaneously for a competitor, customer or supplier, a conflict of interest will likely be present. The best policy is to avoid any direct or indirect business connection with our customers, suppliers or competitors, except on DESTINY's behalf. Conflict of interest situations may not always be clearly defined, so if you have a question you should consult with DESTINY's Compliance Officer. Any employee, officer or director who becomes aware of a conflict of interest or potential conflict of interest should bring it to the attention of a supervisor, manager or DESTINY's Compliance Officer.

GIFTS, GRATUITIES, BRIBES and KICKBACKS

No gifts or gratuities should be given to or accepted by DESTINY employees from a customer, vendor, dealer, supplier, the media, shareholders or any organization doing business with DESTINY which could, in any way, be construed as influencing or rewarding a particular course of action. Generally speaking, any gift or gratuity which has more than a nominal value or which is not related to a normal sales promotion should not be accepted or given.

Relationships with suppliers must be based entirely on sound business decisions and fair dealings. In short, gifts and entertainment can create a "conflict of interest" that may harm the interests of DESTINY. Bribes and kickbacks are criminal acts, strictly prohibited by law. You must not offer, give, solicit or receive any form of bribe or kickback anywhere in the world. Any DESTINY employee or associate who pays or receives bribes or kickbacks will be immediately terminated and reported to the appropriate authorities.

CORPORATE OPPORTUNITIES

Employees, officers and directors are prohibited from taking for themselves personal opportunities that are discovered through the use of corporate property, information or position without the consent of the DESTINY Board of Directors. No employee may use corporate property, information or position for improper personal gain, and no employee may compete with DESTINY directly or indirectly.

DESTINY PROPERTY

All employees should endeavor to protect DESTINY's assets and ensure their efficient use. Theft, carelessness and waste have a direct impact on DESTINY's profitability. Any suspected incident of fraud or theft should be immediately reported for investigation. DESTINY equipment should not be used for non-DESTINY related business, though incidental personal use may be permitted. The obligation of DESTINY employees to protect DESTINY's assets includes proprietary and/or confidential information. Confidential information includes intellectual property such as trade secrets, patents, trademarks and copyrights, as well as marketing plans and strategies, engineering and manufacturing ideas, designs, data bases, salary information and any unpublished financial data and reports. The unauthorized release, use or distribution of this confidential information violates DESTINY policies.

PROTECTION OF DESTINY CLIENT OR VENDOR INFORMATION

You may not use or reveal DESTINY client or vendor confidential or proprietary information to others. In addition, you should take appropriate steps, including securing documents, limiting access to computers and electronic media and undertaking proper disposal methods to prevent unauthorized access to such information. Proprietary and confidential information includes business methods, pricing and marketing data, strategy, computer code, screens, experimental research or other confidential information received from DESTINY's current, former and prospective clients, vendors and associates.

Stealing proprietary information, possessing trade secret information that was obtained without the owner's consent, or inducing such disclosures by past or present employees of other companies is strictly prohibited. Each employee should endeavor to deal fairly with DESTINY's customers, suppliers, competitors and employees. No DESTINY employee should take unfair advantage through manipulation, concealment, abuse of privileged information, misrepresentation of material facts or any other intentional unfair-dealing practice. Aggressive selling activities should not include misstatements, innuendo, or rumors about our competitors and their products and financial condition.

DESTINY must always strive to retain the trust of our investors. From time to time, DESTINY employees, officers and directors may have material inside information about DESTINY, either positive or negative, that is not publicly available. When this information becomes publicly available, it may have an immediate influence, up or down, on the price of DESTINY's stock. Directors, officers and employees are expected to comply fully with federal and state securities laws with respect to the disclosure of "material" corporate information and insider trading rules regarding DESTINY stock. These laws provide substantial civil and criminal penalties for individuals who fail to comply. If an employee, officer or director benefits from a DESTINY stock transaction utilizing "inside information," that individual has violated the SEC's insider trading rules. Family members, friends or other personal associates receiving "material inside information" from an employee, officer or director are also subject to the same insider trading rules. Information that reasonably can be expected to affect the market value of DESTINY stock or to influence investor decisions regarding DESTINY stock is considered "material". This information could include the procurement or loss of a major contract, potential merger, sale or acquisition transaction, financial and key business data, earnings statements and forecasts, changes in management, significant litigation matters or gain or loss of a substantial customer or supplier. If you have a question about compliance with these insider trading laws, you should contact the DESTINY Compliance Officer.

DESTINY employees or representatives must always exercise good judgment in relationships with officials or employees of federal, state or local governments to avoid any conduct which could be in any way construed as influence or rewarding an improper course of action by any employee of federal, provincial/state or local government or any agent or department thereof. Bribery and Graft - DESTINY employees or representatives shall not offer or furnish anything of value to any government employee in return for such an employee performing or refraining from performing an official act. Gratuities - DESTINY employees or representatives shall not offer or furnish any gifts, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan or anything of value, either directly or indirectly, to any employee of an agency or department of any federal, provincial/state or local government with which DESTINY is engaged, or endeavoring to engage, in procurement activities or business or financial transactions of any sort.
